About the Books

The Times-Dispatch believes that this book and magazine offer will be instantly recognized at its full worth.

The "Romantic Epochs of Three Nations" is a work that should be on every library table in every home. The three sets comprising this work give in a most entertaining manner the story of the dramatic and intense incidents in the history of the three great world powers they treat.

"Washington and His Generals" is designed to group around Washington the chief characters and scenes of our revolution.

In all histories of that event movements and results are given rather than scenes; and hence while the plan and progress are clearly developed, the heroic character and thrilling interest of the struggle are in a great measure lost. The author of this work furnishes a marked exception to the rule. The same general design has been followed in "Napoleon and His Marshals," making a spectacular story that stands unique.

"The Tower of London"—Palace—Prison—Fortress, furnishes the groundwork for a romance that grips the interest of the reader and holds it to the end. The mysteries, horrors, intrigues, tragedies and dramatic events that have their settings in its towers, chapels, halls, chambers, gateways, arches, tunnels and drawbridges make up one of the most marvelous stories of history ever told.

ROMANTIC EPOCHS OF THREE NATIONS.

Three Complete Works—Two Volumes Each—Six Fine Books.

The full set of "Romantic Epochs of Three Nations" consists of six volumes, and is divided into three parts of two volumes each, with subtitles as named below, each set of two volumes being complete in itself (beautifully illustrated), treating its special subject fully. The six volumes make a comprehensive whole, embracing the romantic epochs in the histories of America, England and France.

The full set of works (three 2-volume sets) contain nearly seventeen hundred pages. The illustration shows the entire set of six volumes—about half size—and each book measures 5 1/4 inches by 8 inches (library edition).

The type is large, clear face Long Primer. The binding is serviceable and tasty, in rich scarlet cloth (Vellum de Luxe, T pattern), modern flat back, stamped. Each set will be sent securely packed, postage paid.

Northern and Western Men Seeking Homes in This State.

Commissioner Kolner's mail yesterday brought a number of inquiries from Northern and Western men, who are seeking information in regard to Virginia, with a view to locating in the State.

Mr. Will H. Miller, of Carlisle, Pa., wrote as follows:

"I am in receipt of your 'Information for the Homeowner and Investor,' which I have read with great interest. I note therein that you publish further information on sheep in your 'Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1, Sheep Husbandry in Virginia.'

"As we purpose engaging in a sheep ranch within the confines of your State, if a suitable tract of five or six thousand acres can be found, I would think you for a copy of this bulletin, together with any other information you may have published upon the subject."

Commissioner Kolner sent the literature, as requested, and wrote his correspondent a letter, giving full information in regard to sheep raising in this State.

Fred T. Avery, of No. 127 Bellevue Avenue, Detroit, Mich., inquired as to the climate of Virginia, and price of real estate.

Three of Pluma, Ohio, wishes to engage in horse and sheep raising here, and will visit the State soon on a tour of inspection. He asked for a pamphlet, descriptive of Virginia, which was sent him by the Commissioner, with a letter replete with information.

James Forday, of Corona, South Dakota, inquired in regard to lands along the Roanoke River and in Southside Virginia.

John Hobbs, of Maryland, Mich., and William M. Smith and David Smith, both of Sumner, Ill., expect to locate in WANTS RETURN MATCH.

Janowski Challenges Marshall to Another Chess Series.

PARIS, March 9.—The New York Herald publishes the following from a European edition:

David Janowski, who was beaten in the international chess match by the American champion, F. J. Marshall, of Brooklyn, does not consider the match satisfactory.

He has written as follows to Mr. Marshall, challenging him to a second match:

"Dear Sir:—I consider the result of our match far from satisfactory. I am a great lover of games, and I am in the great majority of games, I am allowed the win or draw. I should have won very easily."

"I therefore challenge you to a return match on the following conditions: The first winner of ten games to be declared the winner, and to receive a prize of $1,000."

He has written as follows to Mr. Marshall, challenging him to a second match:

"I should have won very easily."
